Pinch Hobbs Gets Rattled.

"And then came the first time I ever saw Pinch Hobbs get rattled. Jennings fell on the first ball pitched and put it along the ground about four feet from second, on the third base side. It was a warm rap, and looked safe, and there was a great shout as everybody started to run. "But Pinch got that ball. Lying flat on the ground, after one of his remarkable dives, he scooped it, and scrambled to his feet to throw to second and force Donelson Flynn. And just as he raised his arm there came from that crowd of our soldiers the most hair-raising, blood-curdling screech I think I ever heard. My hair went up on end and I ducked my head and looked around to see if the Hayville catamount coacher was loose. And Pinch! He just went up in the air and threw that ball about a mile over Pete Brown's head at first, and stood there trembling—as, Indeed, we all did. "What was that?" says I to Kenesaw Keenan, who was coming to bat after Resaca Jennings had scored and the old veterans were patting him on the back, and the ball had been found in the next lot. "What was what?" says Kenesaw." Death of Helen Tyler.

Helen Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tyler, died yesterdag morning at the family home, 2509 Jefterson avenue.

The girl was about 12 years of age, and has been in frail health for quite a long time. Her malady developed heart tree-ble, and for months she had been a help-less invalid, with but little prospect of recovery. Everything possible was done to restore her health, but the patient grew steadily weaker and passed away surrounded by all the members of her family. Throughout her long filness she bore suffering with a patience and sweetness of temper that endeared her to all who in any way came in contact with her, and there are many besides the immediate relatives who regard the closing of her bright, young life as a personal beteavement. The funeral will occur Tuesday at 2 o'clock.
